

No matter what issues you care most deeply about, be it the environment, education, campaign finance, human rights...an independent media that is not beholden to corporate interests or government power is an essential part of a free society and necessary for these and other issues to receive proper and complete treatment by journalists and reporters.